FOREWORD

IN sending out this little volume, it is with much regret that I am obliged to acknowledge my inability to trace back the line of Rogers beyond John, the father of Abraham Foster, but I have found it impossible so to identify him as even to suggest, with any certainty, his parentage. There were numerous John Rogerses in both Charlestown and Boston at the period when he must have lived there, some of whom were engaged in the invasion of Canada and the siege of Louisburg, but so far it has been in vain that I have endeavored to identify any one of them with this particular man of the same name. All the information that I have been able to obtain relating to him is the date of his marriage, and the fact that he must have died between May, 1777 (his youngest child having been born on April 1, 1778) and July 25, 1796, for on the latter date his "widow" Elizabeth purchased from Joseph Robinson the house and land at the "Lower End of Salem Street," Boston, where she died sometime prior to February 8, 1813, on which date her son, Joseph W. Rogers, was appointed administrator of her will, which was dated December 6, 1812, and mentions her sons John, Abraham Foster, and Joseph Warren, and her daughters Elizabeth Sweetzer and Sarah Sweetzer. I also regret my inability to continue the lines of Abigail Clark, Mary Toole, and Mary Ward, but I can find no clue to them, and it is my hope that some one may read this who can aid me in the search.

In preparing the section on Ancestors I have kept strictly to the lines of direct parentage and, with one exception, have not even mentioned other marriages than those whose issue contributed to the posterity of the particular line involved. In the section on Descendants I have endeavored to mention every individual, regardless of surname or degree of descent. All the information regarding collateral lines which I have received from various sources, I have placed in the Appendix, but I do not in any way hold myself responsible for the authenticity of the same, as I have never made any personal investigations regarding it, and I have reason to suppose that, even if no errors are to be found there, there must be numerous omissions.

Undoubtedly in this compilation there will be found various errors and omissions, for in a work of this nature such conditions are almost unavoidable, and I shall be very grateful, in such case, to have them pointed out to me, that corrections may be made.

So many people have assisted me in this work that space forbids me to thank them all by name: but the following have been so very helpful that I feel it only proper publicly to acknowledge my indebtedness to Mr. William Prescott Greenlaw, Librarian of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Miss Evelyn M. Turner, Librarian of the Military Historical Society of Massachusetts, Mrs. Lotta C. Flagg of South Acton, Miss Rebecca O. Sheldon of Providence, Mr. Henry Gates of Stow, and Mr. Charles Johnson of Littleton.

LUKE ROGERS

LUKE ROGERS, the fifth child and second son of Abraham Foster Rogers and his wife Patty Faulkner, was the first of their offspring born at the old farmhouse at Stow, which was purchased in 1791 when the family moved from Littleton. He was born on August 4, 1792, and until the age of seventeen led the usual life of the sons of prosperous New England farmers, when, tired of the weary grind of such an existence, he went to Concord, where he became apprenticed to a housewright and began to learn the trade which he continued to follow, with few interruptions, for the rest of his life.

In 1811 he enlisted in the famous old local military company known as the Concord Artillery, and served as a private on its first active duty in 1814, "when accompanied by the Concord Light Infantry and Acton Blues, it marched to Boston under command of Captain Reuben Brown, Jr., staying in camp there from September tenth to October thirtieth."* On September 19, 1823, he was commissioned a second lieutenant, and on September 22, 1824, he was promoted to be first lieutenant. On June 4, 1826, he applied to the Governor for his discharge, stating as the principal reason for his request that having removed to Boston where he expected to remain "for years to come," he found it "very inconvenient and expensive to do military duty in said company, when living at such a distance." His request was granted, and he was honorably discharged on August 29, 1826.

While at Concord he became a Freemason, and was initiated on March 11, 1816, into Corinthian Lodge, one of the oldest in the country, having been chartered in 1797, and became actively engaged in the affairs of that organization which he served as Senior Warden from 1821 until 1823.

On April 14, 1818, he was married to Sarah Wright Brown, fourth child of Ephraim Brown and his wife Sibel Wright, by the well known Concord pastor Reverend Ezra Ripley, who had also officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents thirty years before. In 1826 he removed with his family to Boston, no easy task in those days of hard travelling, and lived at various places in the old North end. In 1826 we find them at 85 Salem Street; in 1827 at 64 Salem Street; in 1829 at 3 Salem Street; in 1830 at 13 Charter Street; and in 1832 they moved into the house at 11 Unity Street, which was their abode until they left the city in 1841.

During this period Luke Rogers worked at his trade, having a shop at 16 North Bennet Street until 1839, when he opened a dental office at 202 Hanover Street. While practicing dentistry he formed a partnership in 1840 with Ezra C. Kendall, and under the firm name of Kendall and Rogers, opened a shop at the corner of Merrimac and Pitts Streets, where they manufactured chairs.

In 1841 the family removed to Needham, where they remained about a year, and thence went to Watertown where Luke died on September 11, 1849, and where his widow, who was born at Concord on October 27, 1794, continued to reside until her death on September 8, 1854.

ABBOT, GEORGE,<sup>1</sup> was born in England, and died at Rowley in 1647.

ABBOT, GEORGE,<sup>2</sup> son of George<sup>1</sup> Abbot, was born in England in 1630; was married at Andover on April 26, 1658, to Sarah<sup>2</sup> Farnum, by Simon Bradstreet; and died at Andover on March 22, 1689. He moved from Rowley to Andover in 1655, and was granted "the use of a part of the parsonage lands for which he agreed to 'mend y<sup>e</sup> pulpit cushings, and to gett y<sup>e</sup> lock on y<sup>e</sup> meeting-house mended.'" On February 3, 1672, it was ordained that "whatsoever doggs be in the meeting-house on the Sabbath-day, the owners thereof shall pay six-pence for every time being there, and George Abbot, junior, is appointed to take notice thereof, and to have the pay for his services to gather it up." In 1675 George Abbot was mentioned as one to be paid "for sweeping y<sup>e</sup> meeting-house and ringing y<sup>e</sup> bell, thirty shillings per annum." In addition to his other duties as the first sexton of the First Church of Andover, which position he held until his death, he was the drummer whose duty it was to beat the drum as the signal for services and for daily labor. From February until April of 1676, he served as a private in Major Savage's company, which, under the command of Lieutenant Gillam, took part in the campaign against the Indians conducted in the centre of the State along the Connecticut valley.

ABBOT, HANNAH,<sup>3</sup> daughter of George<sup>2</sup> Abbot and Sarah<sup>2</sup> Farnum, was born at Andover on September 20, 1668; was married at Andover on April 16, 1695, to James<sup>3</sup> Ingalls; and died at Pomfret, Connecticut, on May 3, 1753.

BLOOD, JAMES,<sup>1</sup> died at Concord on November 17, 1683. He is supposed to have been a brother of the infamous Colonel Blood, known in English history for his designs on Charles the Second. He came to Concord in 1639 with his wife Ellen ——. She died at Concord on August 1, 1674.

BOWMAN, MARY,<sup>3</sup> daughter of Francis<sup>2</sup> Bowman and Martha<sup>3</sup> Sherman, was born about 1671; was married at Cambridge on December 2, 1692, to John<sup>3</sup> Eveleth; and died at Stow on December 2, 1747.

BOWMAN, NATHANIEL,<sup>1</sup> died at Watertown on January 26, 1681/2. He was a proprietor of Watertown, February 4, 1636/7. About 1650 he moved to Lexington, then called Cambridge Farms, but later returned to Watertown.

BRAGG, EDWARD,<sup>1</sup> and his wife, Elizabeth —, settled in Ipswich, where his name first appears in 1642 as the servant of Samuel Symonds. He became a commoner in 1664, and a voter in 1679, during which year he was one of the twenty-four tythingmen chosen. His house was burned in 1668. Elizabeth died at Ipswich on May 28, 1691.

BRAGG, MARY,<sup>2</sup> daughter of Edward<sup>1</sup> Bragg and Elizabeth —, was born at Ipswich in 1650; was married at Gloucester on April 1, 1667, to Joseph<sup>2</sup> Eveleth; and died at Ipswich on January 22, 1714.

BROWNE, BOAZ,<sup>2</sup> son of Thomas<sup>1</sup> Browne and Bridget —, was born at Concord on February 14, 1641/2; was married at Concord on November 8, 1664, to Mary<sup>2</sup> Winship; and died at Concord on April 7, 1724.

BROWN, EPHRAIM,<sup>3</sup> son of Thomas<sup>2</sup> Browne and Ruth<sup>2</sup> Wheeler, was born at Concord on April 21, 1689; was married at Concord on August 28, 1718, to Hannah<sup>2</sup> Wilson, by Justice Minot; and died at Concord on February 6, 1749.

BROWN, EPHRAIM,<sup>5</sup> son of Thomas<sup>4</sup> Brown and Mary<sup>4</sup> Flint, was born at Concord on March 27, 1758; was married at Concord on August 12, 1788, to Sibel<sup>5</sup> Wright, by Rev. Ezra Ripley; and died at Concord on January 20, 1839. As a youth he marched out with his brother Jonas, who was captain of the minute-men, and took part in the Concord fight, after which he was detailed for guard duty at the graves of two "Britishers" that had been killed at the bridge. Later he became a fifer in Captain James Russell's company of Colonel Eleazer Brooks's regiment, which participated in the siege of Boston, during which it was on Dorchester Heights, and marched into the city with Washington after the evacuation. On September 28, 1777, he again enlisted and became a member of Captain John Buttrick's company of Colonel Reed's regiment, and was present at the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga, his company having been detached to reinforce General Gates at the northward. He was discharged on November 7, 1777, and returned to Concord on foot, carrying on his back, besides his gun, a package of cotton cloth weighing thirty pounds, which he had bought with the Continental money received for his services in the army, and which would have been wholly worthless by the time he could have reached home. For example, he paid thirty dollars for a breakfast, consisting of a mug of flip and a biscuit, while on the journey. He was remarkable for his great muscular strength, and could bear his weight hanging from a rope by his teeth. He was six feet in height, and retained nearly his full set of teeth until his death. As a young man he was fond of wrestling, which was the principal amusement of the soldiers in the army when off duty, and could boast that he had never been thrown.

BROWN, RUTH,<sup>3</sup> daughter of Thomas<sup>2</sup> Browne and Ruth<sup>2</sup> Wheeler, was born at Concord on February 8, 1678; was married at Concord on November 10, 1698, to Samuel<sup>3</sup> Jones; and died at Concord on March 22, 1764.

BROWNE, THOMAS,<sup>1</sup> was born in Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk County, England; and died at Cambridge on November 3, 1688. In 1637 he emigrated to New England with his brother, Rev. Edmund Browne, and they were among the original proprietors of Sudbury. The following year Thomas moved to Concord with his wife, Bridget ——. He removed to Cambridge in 1682, where he lived until his death. Bridget died at Concord on March 5, 1680/1.

BROWNE, THOMAS,<sup>2</sup> son of Thomas<sup>1</sup> Browne and Bridget ——, was born at Concord in 1651; was married at Concord on November 12, 1677, to Ruth<sup>2</sup> Wheeler, widow of Ephraim Jones; and died at Concord on April 14, 1718. He was for many years the town clerk of Concord, holding office from 1689–1700, and again from 1704–1709. He served as selectman from 1706–1709. He was an ensign in the local military company, as he appears with that title on the records in 1702, but the date of his commission is unknown. He enrolled in the service against the Indians in King Philip's War, on December 3, 1675, and was wounded at the fight at Narragansett Fort a few days later (it is believed on the 16th).

BROWN, THOMAS,<sup>3</sup> son of Boaz<sup>2</sup> Browne and Mary<sup>2</sup> Winship, was born at Concord on May 12, 1667; was married to Rachel<sup>2</sup> Poulter; and died at Concord on May 13, 1739. He was a blacksmith by trade.

BROWN, THOMAS,<sup>4</sup> son of Ephraim<sup>3</sup> Brown and Hannah<sup>2</sup> Wilson, was born at Concord on December 26, 1720; was married at Concord on May 26, 1748, to Mary<sup>4</sup> Flint, by Rev. Daniel Bliss; and died in 1784.

CLARKE, ABIGAIL, was born on October 11, 1742; was married at Concord on October 20, 1763, to Amos<sup>4</sup> Wright, by Justice Minot.

DANE, ABIGAIL,<sup>3</sup> daughter of Francis<sup>2</sup> Dane and Elizabeth<sup>2</sup> Ingalls, was born on October 13, 1652; was married on October 12, 1675, to Francis<sup>2</sup> Faulkner; and died on February 5, 1730. She was one of those unfortunate women who were accused of witchcraft, and just escaped the execution of the sentence of death that was passed upon her. She was arrested and thrown into prison, and her trial was one of the most noteworthy. She was the first of high social standing to be condemned in Andover, and great interest was aroused by the fact that she was the daughter of the town's old and respected minister, who had baptized and married and buried in his parish for forty-five years. In her "Historical Sketches of Andover," Sarah Loring Bailey says:—

Her conduct in the courts was worthy of her position, free alike from credulous weakness on the one hand and from scornful defiance on the other. Either from her own good sense, or upheld by the wise counsel of her father (who never yielded to the delusion), she showed the greatest discretion, paying due deference to the court, yet never losing her firmness and dignity. That she was not to be intimidated by superstitious terrors, the examiners knew, it is evident, for they forebore to argue with her about "peace and judgment to come," but they urged her to confess "for y<sup>e</sup> credit of her Towne!" This innuendo did not move her. She merely made reply in the dignity of simple truth that "God would not require her to confess that she was not guilty of."

Still later, when witnesses were numerous and evidence overwhelming, she made admissions, guardedly, and as if with the design of conceding all that could be conceded with a view to appeasing the clamor for her confession. She admitted that it was possible that the devil might be working through her, but if so, she was not conscious of it, and did not consent to it. She explained some of the charges against her by saying, that when so many of her relations had been accused she had been "raised in her spirit" and almost frantic, and she had "pinched her hands together" in her distress. The examiners had charged that by this "pinching of her hands" the afflicted were tortured. She admitted that possibly it was so, but yet it was not she who hurt them, but the devil working through her without her knowledge or consent.

It was noted against her that she was unmoved by the sufferings of the afflicted; though she said she was sorry for them, "she did not shed a tear." Some seven or eight charged upon her their tortures. Added to the distress of so many accusers was the greatest of all, that of having her two little girls (eight and ten years old) confess themselves witches and charge their mother with being their teacher. Others, confessing themselves witches, "did all acknowledge that they were led into that dreadful sin of witchcraft by the means of the aforesaid Abigail Faulkner."

She was kept in prison for thirteen weeks, and when set free by the general "jail delivery," was legally liable to penalty. In the year 1700 she presented a memorial to the General Court, praying for the defacing of the record against her by which she was under the attainder of a convicted criminal: —

“I am as yet suffered to live, but only as a malefactor convicted upon record of y<sup>e</sup> most heinous crimes that mankind can be supposed to be guilty of, which besides its utter ruining and defaming my Reputation will certainly expose myself to Imminent Danger by new accusations which will thereby be the more readily believed will remain a perpetual brand of infamy upon my family. I do humbly pray that the High and Honourable Court will please to take my case into serious consideration and order the Defacing of y<sup>e</sup> record against me, so that I may be freed from y<sup>e</sup> evil consequences thereof.”

Not until after eleven years, and much petitioning, was the attainder taken off. The record remains to this day one of the most conspicuous on the pages of the “Book of Witchcraft” in the State Archives. Its clear and distinct writing, among many nearly illegible papers, make it one of the noticeable records; so that even the casual turner of leaves cannot fail to read it: —

The Jury find Abigail Faulkner, wife of Francis Faulkner of Andover,
 Guilty of y<sup>e</sup> felony of witchcraft.
 Committed on y<sup>e</sup> body of Martha
 Sprague also on y<sup>e</sup> body of Sarah Phelps.
 Sentence of death passed on Abigail Faulkner.

Her partial admissions, made no doubt under the instructions of her father, who saw that only concessions on some points would save her, prevented the immediate execution of the sentence.

DANE, FRANCIS,<sup>2</sup> son of John<sup>1</sup> Dane, was born in England about 1616; was married to Elizabeth<sup>2</sup> Ingalls; and died at Andover on February 17, 1696/7. He emigrated to New England in 1636, and first lived in Roxbury. Later he walked the vague Indian trail to Ipswich, where he remained for a short time. In 1647 he was ordained at Andover as the second minister of the North Parish First Church. His ministry was long and useful, and closed only with his life. He was much respected, and "when the community was frenzied with the witchcraft delusion, he was one of the few men whose judgment remained unshaken, and whose courage was not daunted by fear of personal danger."* His house was burned in 1661.

DANE, JOHN,<sup>1</sup> was born at Berkhamstead, England, in 1587, and died at Roxbury in September or October, 1658. He was a tailor by trade, and lived both at Andover and Ipswich.

DAVIS, BARNABAS,<sup>1</sup> died at Charlestown on November 28, 1685. He embarked from England on the "Blessing," in July, 1635, with his wife, Patience —. By trade he was a tallow-chandler. Patience was born about 1603, and died at Charlestown on November 15, 1690.

DAVIS, BARNABAS,<sup>3</sup> son of James<sup>2</sup> Davis and Elizabeth<sup>2</sup> Randall, was born at Charlestown on July 10, 1692; was married to Elizabeth<sup>3</sup> Dowse. He was a shipwright by trade.

DAVIS, ELIZABETH,<sup>4</sup> daughter of Barnabas<sup>3</sup> Davis and Elizabeth<sup>3</sup> Dowse, was born at Charlestown on April 3, 1720; was married at Charlestown on November 5, 1742, to Abraham<sup>4</sup> Foster; and died on January 19, 1795.

DAVIS, JAMES,<sup>2</sup> son of Barnabas<sup>1</sup> Davis and Patience —, was married to Elizabeth<sup>2</sup> Randall. He was a cordwainer, and resided in Scituate in 1673.

DOWSE, ELIZABETH,<sup>3</sup> daughter of Eleazer<sup>2</sup> Dowse and Mary<sup>3</sup> Edmands, was born at Charlestown on February 10, 1698/9; and was married to Barnabas<sup>3</sup> Davis.

DOWSE, LAWRENCE,<sup>1</sup> was born at Broughton, Hants County, England, about 1613; was married to Margery<sup>2</sup> Rand about 1646; and died at Charlestown on March 14, 1692. He emigrated to Boston previous to 1642, and was made a freeman on May 26, 1647. In 1649 he moved to Charlestown, where he plied his trade as carpenter, and where he was constable in 1656.

EDMANDS, DANIEL,<sup>2</sup> son of Walter<sup>1</sup> Edmands and Dorothy —, was born about 1630; was married to Mary<sup>2</sup> Sprague; and died at Charlestown on August 22, 1688. By trade he was a feltmaker. During the Indian troubles of 1676, he served as a private in the company commanded by Captain John Cutter, which was engaged during the war in "conducting supply trains to the garrisons."

married at Charlestown on September 21, 1693, to Eleazer<sup>2</sup> Dowse; and died at Charlestown in 1733.

EDMANDS, WALTER,<sup>1</sup> died at Charlestown on July 13, 1667. He was apprenticed in England to distilling strong liquors, and came to Concord before 1639, where he served as constable in 1641, and from whence he moved to Charlestown some time previous to 1652. His wife Dorothy died at Charlestown on September 11, 1671.

ELIOT, FRANCIS,<sup>1</sup> was married to Mary<sup>2</sup> Saunders; and died at Braintree on January 17, 1697. He was a brother of the famous apostle to the Indians, and was one of the petitioners for the town of Braintree in 1645.

EVELETH, FRANCIS,<sup>4</sup> son of John<sup>3</sup> Eveleth and Mary<sup>3</sup> Bowman, was born at Stow in September, 1700; was married at Concord on February 7, 1726/7, to Mary<sup>4</sup> Hunt; and died at Stow on November 23, 1776.

EVELETH, JOHN,<sup>3</sup> son of Joseph<sup>2</sup> Eveleth and Mary<sup>2</sup> Bragg, was born at Gloucester on January 25, 1670; was married at Cambridge on December 2, 1692, to Mary<sup>3</sup> Bowman; and died at Kittery, Maine, on August 1, 1734. He was the first of the sons of Ipswich (where he resided with his parents) to enter Harvard College, from which he graduated in 1689, when he appears to have at once entered the ministry, as we find that a committee of the town of Manchester reported on September 23, 1689, that they had engaged him for one year, commencing October 1st, "to serve among us for ten shillings per day money for every Sabath y<sup>t</sup> he ofisiat among us." Later he was given a regular salary and supplied with a parsonage, and it is to be presumed that he continued to act as minister at Manchester until the latter part of 1695, when he was succeeded by Mr. John Emerson. During this time it seems that he also acted as schoolmaster at the near-by Chebacco Parish, Ipswich, where his parents were then living, for we find in the record of his marriage in 1692 that his occupation is given as "schoolmaster." In 1690 he was sent by the town of Manchester as its agent to Boston to protest to Governor Phipps against the new charter. In the spring of 1696 he became minister at Enfield, and in 1700 was called to the pastorate in Stow, where he continued until 1717, when he resigned, and a few years later became chaplain at the fort in what is now Biddeford, Maine. On his removal from Stow in 1717, he became the preacher at Arundel (now Kennebunkport), Maine, a hamlet not far from Cape Porpoise. In 1720 the town of Arundel agreed to pay him £50 per year salary; on March 4, 1724, the town of Saco invited him to preach half the time at Winter Harbor, to which Arundel consented; but in 1726 he gave up his Saco pastorate and devoted all his time to Arundel. In 1729, at his own "Desier, the town did fairly dismiss him," and he removed to Spruce Creek, near the line of Eliot and Kittery, where he lived until his death, serving the church at Kittery Point from 1729 to 1734.

EVELETH, SYLVESTER,<sup>1</sup> died at Gloucester on January 4, 1689. He appeared in Boston as a baker in 1642, when he and his wife Susanna — were registered at the First Church; but in 1648 he moved to Gloucester, where he settled as a farmer. He was a selectman in 1648, a freeman in 1652, and a representative to the General Court in 1673. He did not live on good terms with the church during his early residence at Gloucester, and was accused of defaming it, for which he was ordered either to make a public acknowledgment of his fault or pay a fine. In 1666 he was licensed to keep an ordinary, and at the same time was excused from annual training by paying two bushels of Indian corn yearly. Susanna died at Gloucester on September 14, 1659.

FARNUM, FARNHAM, VARNHAM, VARNUM, RALPH,<sup>1</sup> probably that “sonne of Ralph Varnam, merchant tailor,” which was born at London on August 25, 1601. He emigrated to New England with his wife Alice — and three children in 1635, and became a proprietor of Ipswich in 1639, where he was appointed town-crier in 1640. He also rang the bell to summon the people to church, and kept the meeting-house clean. About 1652 he removed with his family to Andover. By profession he was a barber-surgeon, and a lay preacher.

FARNUM, SARAH,<sup>2</sup> daughter of Ralph<sup>1</sup> Farnum and Alice —, was born at Ipswich about 1638; was married at Andover on April 26, 1658, to George<sup>2</sup> Abbot, by Simon Bradstreet; and died on May 12, 1728.

FAULKNER, AMMIRUHAMMAH,<sup>3</sup> son of Francis<sup>2</sup> Faulkner and Abigail<sup>3</sup> Dane, was born at Andover on March 20, 1693; was married at Andover on June 7, 1726, to Hannah<sup>4</sup> Ingalls; and died at Acton on August 4, 1756. In 1735 he left Andover and moved to Concord Village (later known as South Acton), where he built the first house in that locality at the great falls of the Great Brook. This fine old residence is still standing, and is one of the famous Revolutionary houses which, after having served as a fort during the early Indian troubles, was one of the patriot centres during the great struggle for independence, when it was occupied by the celebrated Colonel Francis Faulkner, son of Ammiruhammah. The first settler also erected the Faulkner mills at the great falls, which are still standing, and are operated by his descendants.

FAULKNER, EDMOND,<sup>1</sup> was married at Salem on February 4, 1647, to the widow Dorothy Robinson, by John Winthrop; and died at Andover on January 18, 1686. He first emigrated to Salem, where he and his wife were the first couple married in America by Governor Winthrop. The purchase of Andover was accomplished by Edmond Faulkner, acting on behalf of the settlers, securing the territory from the Indian chief Cutshamache for twenty gallons of rum and a red coat. He was one of the founders of the church, and in 1648 was the first licensed innholder and became a vintner of wines and strong liquors. He served the town as selectman in 1674 and 1675, at which time he also acted as town clerk. During King Philip's War his house was burned (on April 19, 1676), and all his cattle were killed. Dorothy died at Andover on December 2, 1688.

FAULKNER, FRANCIS,<sup>2</sup> son of Edmond<sup>1</sup> Faulkner and Dorothy —, was born at Andover in May, 1651; was married at Andover on October 12, 1675, to Abigail<sup>3</sup> Dane; and died at Andover on September 19, 1732.

FAULKNER, NATHANIEL,<sup>4</sup> son of Ammiruhammah<sup>3</sup> Faulkner and Hannah<sup>4</sup> Ingalls, was born in 1735; was married on October 22, 1765, to Catherine<sup>5</sup> Eveleth; and died at Acton on July 4, 1821. From March 29 to November 10, 1756, he served as a corporal in a "company of foot in His Majesty's service," under Captain Daniel Fletcher, in the regiment commanded by Colonel Ebenezer Nichols, which was raised by the Province of Massachusetts Bay for the reduction of Canada. He also served as a lieutenant in the Acton company, commanded by Captain Simon Hunt, which belonged to Colonel Eleazer Brooks's regiment, and accompanied it during the fortifying of Dorchester Heights and the siege of Boston.

FAULKNER, PATTY,<sup>5</sup> daughter of Nathaniel<sup>4</sup> Faulkner and Catherine<sup>5</sup> Eveleth, was born at Acton on April 28, 1766; was married at Acton on May 26, 1785, to Abraham Foster Rogers; and died at Stow on October 31, 1843.

FLINT, JOHN,<sup>2</sup> son of Thomas<sup>1</sup> Flint and Abigail —, was married at Concord on November 12, 1667, to Mary<sup>2</sup> Oakes; and died at Concord on December 5, 1687. About a year after the close of King Philip's War it became necessary to reorganize the military force of Concord, and John became its lieutenant. He represented the town at the General Court in 1677 and 1679.

FLINT, THOMAS<sup>1</sup> (Honorable), was born at the old family homestead in Matlock, Derbyshire, England, in 1603; and died at Concord on October 8, 1653. He sold his patrimonial estate in England for £20,000 sterling, and with his wife, Abigail —, emigrated to America, where he first settled in Boston, but was persuaded to remove to Concord, which he represented at the General Court from 1637-1641. In 1639 he was appointed one of three commissioners "to have the ending of small matters this year"—a local tribunal invested with the jurisdiction of minor offences, and civil court suits involving small amounts, and in 1641 he was commissioned "to order small cases at Concord." In 1641 he was allowed to perform the marriage service in the towns of Concord and Sudbury. In 1649 he showed his stern Puritan austerity by joining in a protest to Governor Endicott against the wearing of long hair as "a thing uncivil and unmanly, whereby men doe deform themselves, and offend sober and modest men, and doe corrupt good manners." In 1643 he became an Assistant on the Governor's Council, which position he retained until his death in 1653. He accompanied the Apostle Eliot in his visits to the Indian settlements on the Merrimac river and vicinity. Abigail died at Concord on December 18, 1689.

Johnson in his "Wonder-working Providence" thus describes Thomas Flint, in what he terms short meter :—

At Christs commands, thou leav'ft thy lands, and native habitation :

His folke to aid, in Defart fraid, for Gospells Exaltation,

FLINT HARDY thou, wilt not allow, the undermining Fox,

With subtill skill, Christs vines to spill, thy sword shall give the knocks.

Yet thou bafe duft, and all thou haft is Chrif't's, and by him thou :

Art made to be, fuch as we fee, hold faft for ever now.

FLINT, THOMAS,<sup>3</sup> son of John<sup>2</sup> Flint and Mary<sup>2</sup> Oakes, was born at Concord on January 16, 1682; was married at Concord on January 15, 1717, to Mary<sup>4</sup> Brown, by Justice Minot; and died at Concord on April 1, 1765.

FOSTER, ABRAHAM,<sup>3</sup> son of Jacob<sup>2</sup> Forster and Abigail<sup>2</sup> Lord, was born at Ipswich on December 4, 1667; was married on July 2, 1699, to Abigail<sup>2</sup> Parsons; and died at Ipswich on December 25, 1720. He was a carpenter.

FOSTER, ABRAHAM,<sup>4</sup> son of Abraham<sup>3</sup> Foster and Abigail<sup>2</sup> Parsons, was born at Ipswich on July 5, 1716; was married at Charlestown on November 5, 1742, to Elizabeth<sup>4</sup> Davis. He was a joiner and carpenter and lived in Boston and Charlestown.

FOSTER, ELIZABETH,<sup>5</sup> daughter of Abraham<sup>4</sup> Foster and Elizabeth<sup>4</sup> Davis, was baptized at Charlestown on November 18, 1744; was married at Charlestown on May 27, 1762, to John Rogers; and died at Boston.

FORSTER, JACOB,<sup>2</sup> son of Reginald<sup>1</sup> Forster and Judith —, was born in England in 1635; was married on February 26, 1667, to Abigail<sup>2</sup> Lord; and died at Ipswich on July 9, 1710.

FORSTER, REGINALD,<sup>1</sup> died at Ipswich in 1681. His wife Judith died at Ipswich in October, 1664. He was surveyor of highways in Ipswich in 1661.

HOSMER, JAMES,<sup>1</sup> was born in England about 1607; and died at Concord on February 7, 1685. He left his home in Hawkhurst, Kent County, England, and embarked from London on the ship "Elizabeth" in 1635, which year he settled in Concord. He brought a certificate from the vicar of Hawkhurst and the attestation of two justices that he and his family were "conformable to the Church of England" and were "no subsidy men." His wife Anne — was born in England about 1608; and died in 1665.

HOSMER, MARY,<sup>3</sup> daughter of James<sup>2</sup> Hosmer and Sarah<sup>2</sup> White, was born at Concord on April 26, 1664; was married in 1692 to Samuel<sup>2</sup> Wright; and died at Concord on December 24, 1725.

HUNT, JOHN,<sup>3</sup> son of Nehemiah<sup>2</sup> Hunt and Mary Toole, was born at Concord on January 12, 1673; was married at Concord on April 29, 1703, to Mary<sup>3</sup> Brown ; and died at Concord on May 3, 1765.

HUNT, MARY,<sup>4</sup> daughter of John<sup>3</sup> Hunt and Mary<sup>3</sup> Brown, was born at Concord on July 1, 1706 ; was married at Concord on February 7, 1726/7, to Francis<sup>4</sup> Eveleth ; and died at Stow on June 23, 1794.

HUNT, NEHEMIAH,<sup>2</sup> son of William<sup>1</sup> Hunt and Elizabeth —, was born in 1631 ; was married at Concord on June 1, 1663, to Mary Toole ; and died at Concord on March 6, 1717.

HUNT, WILLIAM,<sup>1</sup> died at Marlborough in October, 1667. He came from Yorkshire and was a freeman of Concord on June 2, 1641. His wife Elizabeth — died at Concord on December 27, 1661.

INGALLS, EDMUND,<sup>1</sup> was the son of Robert, and the grandson of Henry Ingalls. He was born at Skirbeck, Lincolnshire, England, about 1595 ; and was drowned in March, 1648. He came to Salem in Governor Endicott's company in 1628. The following year, with his brother Francis and four others, he commenced the settlement of Lynn, and his name is often found among the town records, showing that he was a prominent citizen. That he was not as bigoted as his neighbors is proved by the fact that he was fined on April 20, 1646, for bringing home an armful of sticks on the Sabbath day. In March, 1648, while travelling to Boston on horseback, he was drowned in the Saugus river, owing to a defective bridge, and his heirs recovered damages to the amount of £100.

INGALLS, HANNAH,<sup>4</sup> daughter of James<sup>3</sup> Ingalls and Hannah<sup>3</sup> Abbot, was born at Andover on January 2, 1697; was married at Andover on June 7, 1726, to Ammiruhammah<sup>3</sup> Faulkner; and died at Acton on June 11, 1781. .

INGALLS, HENRY,<sup>2</sup> son of Edmund<sup>1</sup> Ingalls and Anne —, was born at Skirbeck, Lincolnshire, England, in 1627; was married at Andover on July 6, 1653, to Mary<sup>2</sup> Osgood by Simon Bradstreet (the first marriage performed at Andover); and died at Andover on February 8, 1718/9. He owned land at Ipswich which he sold in 1652, when he became one of the settlers at Andover, buying his land of the Indians for cloth and trinkets. He became a freeman in 1673, was constable in 1669, surveyor in 1671, and sergeant of the local military company from 1666 to 1675.

JONES, ELIZABETH,<sup>4</sup> daughter of Samuel<sup>3</sup> Jones and Ruth<sup>3</sup> Brown, was born at Concord on October 17, 1700; and was married in 1719 to Joseph<sup>3</sup> Wright.

JONES, JOHN,<sup>1</sup> was born in England in 1615; and died at Concord on June 12, 1673. He and his wife Dorcas — came to New England on the ship "Susan and Ellen" in 1635 and settled in Cambridge, but soon moved to Concord where he was a freeman in 1650. Dorcas died at Concord on November 22, 1709.

JONES, SAMUEL,<sup>2</sup> son of John<sup>1</sup> Jones and Dorcas ———, was born at Cambridge on October 8, 1648; was married at Concord on January 16, 1672, to Elizabeth<sup>2</sup> Potter; and died at Cambridge in 1717. He was “clerk of y<sup>e</sup> bona” in 1689.

JONES, SAMUEL,<sup>3</sup> son of Samuel<sup>2</sup> Jones and Elizabeth<sup>2</sup> Potter, was born at Concord on September 5, 1674; was married at Concord on November 10, 1698, to Ruth<sup>3</sup> Brown; and died at Concord on November 5, 1755.

LORD, ROBERT,<sup>1</sup> son of “widow Katherine Lord” (who was a commoner of Ipswich in 1641), was born in England about 1612; was married in 1630 to Mary<sup>2</sup> Waite; and died at Ipswich on April 21, 1683. He was admitted freeman of Ipswich in 1636, and represented that town at the General Court in 1638. In 1645 he was voted to “keep the streets clear of wood and timber.” He served the town as town clerk from 1647 until his death, and was marshal, and in 1661 selectman. On October 14, 1656, he was appointed one of the commissioners “to settle the bounds betweene Hampton & Salisbury.” He was also recorder of deeds and clerk of the court for Essex County. In his will he bequeathed his entire estate to his widow during her life, and speaks of her as one “with whom by God’s good Providence we have lived cōfortably together in a married condition almost fifty-three years." By trade he was a cordwainer.

OAKES, EDWARD,<sup>1</sup> died at Concord on October 13, 1689. He was in Cambridge as early as 1640, where he was made a freeman on May 18, 1642, and became a useful and prominent citizen. He was selectman twenty-nine years between 1642 and 1678, and represented Cambridge at the General Court in 1659, 1660, 1669-1681. In 1656 he was appointed "Quartermaster of the Troop," and in June, 1675, he acted as a lieutenant in Captain Prentice's troop, which served in the summer campaign at Mount Hope. He was at Lancaster after its destruction, February 10, 1676, "and was afterwards scouting between Marlborough and Medfield, and at the attack on February 21, was quartered there with his troopers." In 1682 he removed to Concord, which he represented at the General Court in 1683, 1684, and 1686.

OAKES, MARY,<sup>2</sup> daughter of Edward<sup>1</sup> Oakes and Jane —, was married at Concord on November 12, 1667, to John<sup>2</sup> Flint; and died at Concord on June 9, 1690. There is some question as to Mary's parentage, Shattuck asserting in his "Concord" that she was the daughter of Urian<sup>2</sup> Oakes (son of Edward<sup>1</sup> Oakes) President of Harvard College, while Paige in his "Cambridge" declares her the sister of Urian, and the daughter of Edward. In consideration of the fact that Urian graduated from Harvard in 1649 and soon went to England, where he was preaching until 1662, when he was silenced by the Act of Uniformity, and did not return to this country until much later, it would appear that in all probability Paige is correct.

OSGOOD, JOHN,<sup>1</sup> was born at Wherwell, Hampshire, England, on July 23, 1595; was married in England about 1627 to Sarah —; and died at Andover on October 24, 1651. Sarah died at Andover on April 8, 1667. He probably came to Massachusetts about 1638, as he was admitted a freeman on May 23, 1639, and settled in Ipswich; but he moved to Newbury shortly after, where he remained until 1645, when he removed to the new settlement at Andover. He came from a town near Andover, England, and it is said that it was he who named the new plantation. In her "Historical Sketches of Andover," S. L. Bailey says: "Mr. Osgood was the town's first representative to the General Court, 1651. . . . The great problem of the General Assembly just at that time was how to keep a safe neutrality in regard to the civil wars of the mother country, or rather how to seem submissive subjects to the powers that were, and yet practically to manage the colonial affairs in their own way. The Massachusetts Colony was Puritan in sentiment, but had no mind to embroil itself in the quarrels across the water. . . . The General Court, to which Mr. Osgood was the deputy from Andover, voted, in reference to some of the demands of the beloved and honored Protector of England, to the effect that it would be inconsistent with the colonial conscience to submit its affairs to any laws except those made by the freemen of the Colony; and especially, they remonstrated against the appointment of any Governor, by the Protector, for the Colony; demonstrating that their charter entitled them to elect their chief executive in the Colony. Cromwell, therefore, left the colonial magistrates undisturbed." He was also the deputy in 1666 and 1669. John Osgood's will was the first made by any citizen of Andover, and he bequeathed to his daughter Mary, £25, to be paid on her majority.

PARSONS, JEFFREY,<sup>1</sup> was born at Alphington, near Exeter, Devonshire, England, about 1631; was married at Gloucester on November 11, 1657, to Sarah<sup>2</sup> Vinson; and died at Gloucester on August 19, 1689.

POTTER, LUKE,<sup>1</sup> was born in England about 1608; was married at Concord on October 13, 1644, to Mary<sup>2</sup> Edmands; and died at Concord on October 13, 1697. He was a free-man in 1638, and a deacon of the First Parish Church in 1678.

POULTER, JOHN,<sup>1</sup> was married on December 29, 1662, to Rachel<sup>2</sup> Eliot; and died at Medford on September 18, 1676. He came from Rayleigh, Essex, England, and bought a farm in Billerica in 1658, but on the alarm of King Philip's War in 1675, he moved his family to Medford.

PURCHIS, OLIVER,<sup>1</sup> was born in 1613, and died at Concord on November 20, 1701. He emigrated to Massachusetts about 1635, and first settled at Dorchester, but soon removed to Lynn, where he was made a freeman in 1636. In 1660 he was chosen to represent that town at the General Court, and while a member of that body he attempted the abolishment of corporal punishment at Harvard College, where it was then the practice to whip delinquent students most unmercifully. Purchis was an ardent Parliament man and did not hesitate to shelter the regicide Goffe when the latter sought a hiding place in Lynn. On learning that the fugitive's retreat was discovered, Purchis craftily awaited until the pursuers arrived at the house and then, jumping out of a window, led them on a long and fruitless chase of over two miles, while Goffe departed by another road.

In 1665 some question seems to have arisen as to the loyalty of the Colony to the crown, and in answer the General Court ordered that a special declaration of loyalty "be publified by Mr. Oliuer Purchis on horſe backe, by ſound of trumpet, and that Thomas Bligh, y<sup>e</sup> trumpeter, and Marſhall Richard Wayte accompany him, and y<sup>t</sup> in y<sup>e</sup> cloſe he ſay, wth an audible voyce, ‘God ſave the King!’” But being a decided anti-royaliſt, the ſtory goes that when he came to the final phrase he was ſeized with ſuch a violent fit of coughing that the word “King” was not to be diſtinguiſhed. In 1668 Purchis was choſen County Commiſſioner, and in 1675 he was the lieutenant of the Lynn military company, with which he ſerved in King Philip’s war. At the General Court held in Boſton in May, 1685, he was appointed one of ſeven “to revife the laws and eſpecially ſuch as have bin made ſince the laſt committee had the perſfall and revifall of y<sup>e</sup> body of y<sup>m</sup>, and to make a return at the next Court of Election,” for which appointment he declined to accept the office of Aſſiſtant on the Governor’s Council to which he was elected. In 1686, while alſo a deputy, he was elected to the office of town clerk (being the third incumbent) which he retained for five years. In this official capacity he is named as a grantee in the Indian deed of Lynn, executed that year by David Kankſhamoſhaw and his kindred, heirs of old Sagamore George No-Noſe.

In 1688 Edward Randolph, ſecretary of Governor Andros, being greatly taken by the beauty of Nahant, requested the Governor to grant it to him, which cauſed great excitement and bitter reſentment among the people of Lynn. In order to conciliate them, Randolph viſited the town to hold a meeting with the principal citizens, that ſome amicable agreement might be made. This meeting was held at the houſe of Town Clerk Purchis, and, the arguments becoming ſtrong and excited on both sides, a fracas ensued, during which Randolph whipped out a knife and severed the left ear from the head of Mr. Purchis. Oliver's strong anti-royalist sentiments naturally led him to be an ardent supporter of the Revolution of 1688, and he was one of those who, on the arrival of the news of the flight of James the Second, rushed to Boston to unite with the uprising of its citizens, who seized Randolph and other obnoxious persons and threw them into prison. But he paid dearly for his political sympathies, for while illuminating his house in honor of the installation of William and Mary, the building took fire and a large portion of the roof was consumed. In 1691 he removed to Concord. In business Oliver Purchis was the agent of the iron company whose works were established about 1645, and were mostly owned by residents of England.

Regarding these Lynn iron works we find the following interesting extract from Obadiah Turner's Journal in "Notable People and Notable Things in the Early History of Lynn":—

Y<sup>e</sup> overseer of y<sup>e</sup> workes did show vs greate courtesie. He would haue vs view y<sup>e</sup> premises, and heare y<sup>e</sup> storie of their greate doings. And he entertayned us with a noble dinner; giving vs fresh meat in plentie and fish. And to crown all wee had a most daintie pudding, wherein were cherries of most delightfull taste. And wee had fruited and favorie dishes of berries, some black and some red, wth plentie of sweetening spread vpon y<sup>m</sup>. A good tankard of well kept cyder furnished drink for vs. He hath a wife of great comeliness and pleasantrie, haueing no foure lookes nor angry wordes. She hath two children verie faire and smarte. And being of goode learning she delighteth to instruct and catechize y<sup>e</sup> little folk of y<sup>e</sup> precinct.

Ye enterprife of y<sup>e</sup> Iron Workes we haue much at hearte. It hath our labours and our praiers and must needs prosper if God be wth vs in jt; and methinks he is, for wee are his people and he feeth our need.

RAND, ROBERT,<sup>1</sup> was born in England; was married to Alice<sup>2</sup> Sharpe; and died at Charlestown in 1639.

RANDALL, WILLIAM,<sup>1</sup> was married in England to Elizabeth<sup>1</sup> Barstow. They emigrated to New England in 1635, from Yorkshire, England, and first lived in Rhode Island. In 1637 they removed to Marshfield, where they remained until 1640, when they became permanent settlers of Scituate. He seems to have been of a rather quarrelsome disposition, as we find him engaged in numerous lawsuits with his neighbors regarding the bounds of his land.

ROGERS, ABRAHAM FOSTER,<sup>2</sup> son of John<sup>1</sup> Rogers and Elizabeth<sup>5</sup> Foster, was born on October 2, 1764; was married at Acton on May 26, 1785, to Patty<sup>5</sup> Faulkner; and died at Stow on October 22, 1834. In 1791 he moved with his wife and five children from Littleton to Stow. According to the Pension Bureau Records he died at Stow on August 23, 1834, but his tombstone gives the date recorded above. He enlisted daughter of Phineas Matthews and Chloe (Sisson) Matthews, who was born at Gallipolis, Ohio, on October 16, 1841. No children.

At the outbreak of the Civil War he was living at St. Louis, and immediately enlisted in Company E, Third United States Reserves on May 8, 1861. On June 8, 1861, he was transferred to Company G, First Missouri Volunteers, commanded by his relative Captain John S. Cavender. This regiment was converted into artillery and on June 10, 1861, became the First Missouri Light Artillery, under which designation it served at Wilson's Creek. He was commissioned second lieutenant in Company B, Twenty-ninth Missouri Infantry, on September 6, 1862, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Chickasaw Bayou on December 29, 1862, where the whole company, save thirteen, were either killed, wounded or captured. He was imprisoned in the famous Libby Prison, Richmond, whence he was exchanged on May 6, 1863, and returned to his company as a captain, his commission dating from June 1, 1863. He continued to serve with his command through the battles of Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Orchard Bluff, and Ringgold; and he marched with Sherman through the famous Atlanta campaign, and was at the burning of Columbus. He was honorably discharged from the service on tender of his resignation on April 22, 1865. In 1884 he published his "Personal Experiences in the Great Civil War."

CAVENDER. JOHN SMITH CAVENDER, son of John Cavender and Jane (Smith) Cavender, was born at Franklin, New Hampshire, on March 11, 1824; was married at Watertown on July 25, 1854, to Lucinda Wesson Rogers, daughter of Luke Rogers and Sarah Wright (Brown) Rogers; and died at St. Louis, Missouri, on February 23, 1886. When the Civil War broke out he was a member of the Missouri legislature, and he immediately entered the service as a captain of the First Missouri Artillery, and, with Generals Frank P. Blair and Nathaniel Lyon, was very influential in saving Missouri to the Union, taking an active part in the breaking up of the Confederate camp. On August 9, 1861, he was sent by General Lyon with a personal appeal to General Fremont for reinforcements, which were positively refused with the result that the battle of Wilson's Creek, fought on the following day, was not a decided Federal victory, as it should have been. Captain Cavender was present at this battle, during which he was shot through the left breast near the heart by a minie ball, which actually passed through his body, leaving a wound through which a silk handkerchief was drawn. On November 21, 1861, he was promoted to major, and resigned as such on August 26, 1862. On October 11, 1862, he became the Colonel of the Twenty-ninth Missouri Infantry, which position he resigned on February 19, 1863. His military service was one of much distinction, and he fought gallantly in many engagements, among which were the attacks on Forts Henry and Donelson, the battles of Corinth and Shiloh, and the siege of Vicksburg. On March 13, 1865, he was breveted Brigadier General of Volunteers "for gallant and meritorious services at Donelson and Shiloh." After the close of the war he gained prominence in civil life, serving as a member of the Missouri senate, and was later appointed by President Grant, of whom he was a personal friend, to the Board of Managers of the National Soldiers' Home at Dayton, Ohio.
